- A. This spy was a hero for the Americans at Valcour Island in 1776 and Saratoga in 1777, yet received no credit. Feeling repeatedly ignored and disrespected by Washington, he worked with British spymaster John Andre to sell West Point to the British in 1780.
- B. This Knowlton's Ranger volunteered to go undercover in September 1776. He survived the British takeover of New York September 15. He was discovered and hung September 22, 1776, supposedly saying "I only regret that I have but one live to lose for my country."
- C. Now known as a role in a hit Broadway musical, this tailor and his enslaved man Cato were recommended as spies by Alexander Hamilton. He worked with another spy group and was arrested by the British after a spy defected to the enemy. He was released in 1781.
- D. This group, led by an army officer, passed coded messages using numbers and different anagrams. They decoded it using a code book. They were integral in uncovering an infamous spy who was close to Washington. Today, they're best known from the book and TV show Turn: Washington's Spies.
